Singita Community Culinary School Cooking classes

Classes are held in the state-of-the-art kitchen of the Singita Community Culinary School.

The classes are small and intimate.

Guests get to cook alongside the students or alumni and learn more about the programme.

All funds raised contribute to the SCCS Student Scholarship Fund.

- The Singita Community Culinary School is a community partnership programme that produces 6-10 internationally qualified commis chefs every year.
- The school has a state-of-the-art demonstration studio at Singita Lebombo Lodge, where guests can take part in pre-arranged cooking classes.
- Classes should be booked at least 24 hours in advance to allow the chefs enough time to prepare.
- The classes can be scheduled any day of the week, subject to availability.
- A professional, qualified chef leads the classes.
- Guests can either cook a traditional South African dish, or one of the trademark dishes from the lodge's menu.

Bookings can be made through reservations@singita.com or booked on-site at either Singita Lebombo or Sweni Lodge.
